A very important case was that filed yesterday in the district clerk's office by Stanley & Hume as attorneys for Amos Houck. MR. FRANK SMITH'S APPLICATION. As is known to most of the people of our city, Mr. Frank Smith, the senior of the Bescon, has been alling for some time past, being confined to his home now for several weeks. Last summer he was thrown from a buggy, receiving something of a jacring hurt, which, while not severe in its effects, left a disquieting influence on his nervous system. A few days after, while he and Mrs. Smlth were chaperoning a party of young folks on the Walnut river, Mr. Smith took a plunge bath, the sudden shock of which aggravated or intensified the nervous trouble caused by the fall in the first instance. The disturbance for a tong time was confined to his left side and was not unitke an attack of pleurisy to its symptoms. Later, after consulting some of our local physicians, he went to Chicago, where be placed himself under treatment of Dr. Lyman the specialist in nervous affections and disorders, and under whose treatment, for the must part, he has remained ever since in connection with the direct supervision of Dr. McAdams. It occurred to some of Mr. Smith's friends to invite Dr. Flint, the messmerist, to make a friendly call in hopes that he might diagnose, suggest or treat to some extent, the case. The employes number 800-over 200 more than last year. The performers number one hundred and fifty. The main canvas will scat 12,000 people. The menageric has been doubled, and among other new features is a giant giraffe, the only one now owned by a circus. It requires four advertising cars and advance brigade of over a hundred agents and bill posters to thoroughly cover the large territory which is billed in order to draw the people to a centre. Nothing but highsalaried performers of world-wide reputation are employed. The show is run on strictly business principles. No fakirs of any kind can come near the Ringling Brothers' exhibition. The farmer who visits the show will have no fears of being fleeced. It is a gala day for them as well as for those in the city. The parade that ushers in circus day is said to be the best ever seen on the streets of any city is bright, it is long and it costs nothing to see.

> Several humbred people alternately held their breath, applauded and laughed over the hypnotic experiments of Dr. First at the opera house last night. It was the culmination of a week of realty remarksble performances, and the enthusiasm was an indication of the rapidly growing later est in the doctor's clever work. Severa early part of the week were on hand, and the hypnotizer had no difficulty in placing them under his influence. Several who exhibited some stubbornuess in the early part of the evening became notably good subjects after the doctor had got them oughly under control.

The demonstrator's experiments in hypnotic suggestion were not only intensely amusing, but also evidenced a wide knowl edge of human nature. At the doctor's suggestion subjects closed their eyes and endeavored in vain to open them; walked with stiff joints; suffered the excruciating agonles of toothacte: felt electric shocks in their limbs; reveled in an inglerious condition of inebriety on aquapure, and made themselves generally ridiculous on slight provocation. The facial expressions of the subjects, both during the experi ments and when the doctor suddenly brought them back to a sense of their condition, were laughable in the extreme, and kept the audience in a constant roar of Oue of the most remarkable features of the performance was a mimic voyage in a balloon, in which the doctor, his daughter, a slight, pretty little Miss, and several Wichita men of various ages purticipated. The subjects were made to be lieve that they were sitting in the basket of a balloon, and the varied experiences incident to such a trip were vividiy portraved by the unconscious actors by the marvellous suggestive powers of the demonstrator.

The flual experiment of the evening, in which a stone weighing several hundred pounds was broken on the body of Miss Flint while extended in a cataleptic state from the backs of two chairs, was a complete quietus to the skeptic. The stone was placed on the young lady's body by well known Wichita men, and the sledge was successfully awang by a local man after one candidate for sledge-hammer honors had failed. As the great stone fell shattered in a dozen pieces, the audience cheered; the little subject was tenderly Loan association met in its offices in the raised, and when, through the manipulaand looked around at the broken bits of This organization so recently formed, has already attained a large membership, representing all branches of trade and labor throughot the city, and is now in lossed around at the observe bits of stone with childline simplicity and currently enough to send the appliance sweeping through the house again. What is meant by "Chicago construction" as applied to buildings? What are "caryatides?" What is a "peristyle?" What is a "rose window?" I find these terms used in newspoper descriptions of the world's fair buildings in Chicago. Kindly answer and oblige.

A CARPENTER.

Answer-Since the introduction of pas-enger elevators there has been a notable eparture in the architecture of office and schief elevators there has been a holable departure in the architecture of office and busin as buildings in our large city. Chicago is especially noted for its high office buildings called "sky scrapers." The soil on which these tail fireproof buildings rest is a soft, compressible clay of great depth, some sixty to ninety feet, on which it is undestrable to place greater weight than 3,000 pounds per square foot, hence the necessity of reducing the weight of the building to the minimum consistent with stability. It is also essential that the interior of the building should receive the maximum of light. To satisfy these conditions the following called "Chicago construction," was applied A complete steel skeleton fire-proofed, all weights to be carried on the column. The outside wall at each story to be carried on linnets between columns. No weights carried on the walls, therefore they are made thicker than necessary to give the desired reveals than necessary to give the desired reveals and cover the window boxes.

In these buildings the same engineering ability and the same careful and intelligent inspection or superintendence are required as in a railroad bridge of the first Caryatides are human female figures A peristile is a range of columns encir-cing an edifice, such as that which sur-rounds the evindrical drum under the cupols of St. Paul's eathedral, London, Ross window is the name given to a arcular window with radiating tracery, salled also a wheel window. called also a wheel window.

If the inquirer who signs his questions "A Carpenter" had a set of the EAGLE's edition of that standard reference library, the Encyclopedia Britannica, he would find in volume II ninety-eight pages under architecture of which seventeen pages are used for the glossary of architectural terms. There are sixty-six illustrations and twenty-two full page plates accompanying this article. That it contains a description of Chicago architecture is evidence that the Encyclopedia Britannica is up to date. That the full Britannian is up to date. That the full set of twenty five volumes can be obtained of the Eastle for 10 cents a day is evidence that it is within the reach of every one, and that thousands have been taken is evidence that nearly every one is reaching for it. It's a stand-by in the EAGLE office when questions must be answered.
